

Gohar Yasin Chaudhary holds a Master's Degree in Electrical Engineering from Cornell University, MBA from LUMS, Bachelor's Degree in Electronics Engineering from UET and notable qualifications in mind-related studies.

His rich academic background with scientific research on thoughts and brain behaviour and hands-on experience to run industrial business units and manage corporate affairs have enabled him to develop skills to get maximum creative output from people in today's challenging environment.

He has spent the first part of his life in academics, the second in building up his business and the third and last part in contributing back to society. In an endeavour to help people help themselves and to do the greatest service, he holds seminars and workshops across the globe to train people to regulate their minds and help them lead happy and successful lives.